ABSTRACT

This catalog supplement represents the additions to the collection of the Environmental Conservation Library of Minnesota (ECOL) from September 10, 1973 to September 17, 1976. The supplement contains 3,329 books and documents. The catalog includes an author and main entry catalog, a title catalog, a subject catalog, a pamphlet file, subject headings, and a periodical list. The materials range in difficulty from introductory books for children to highly technical reports on minute aspects of single subjects. The materials provide an extensive amount of information on a variety of environmental subjects. (RH)

Introduction

BACKGROUND

This catalog supplement represents the additions to the collection of the Environmental Conservation Library of Minnesota (ECOL) from September 10, 1973 to September 17, 1976. The first edition of the ECOL Book Catalog, listing the collection as of September 10, 1973, was published by the American Library Association in 1974. This supplement lists 3,329 books and documents; the first edition listed approximately 2,800. The two volumes should be used together to indicate the full scope of the collection.

ECOL serves as a state environmental information center for Minnesota through action of the Minnesota Legislature in 1971. It is a cooperative effort of the State and the Minneapolis Public Library and Information Center. Circulating materials are loaned and information services are provided without charge to any person or organization in Minnesota. Users outside of Minnesota may have access to the collection under the usual interlibrary loan conditions.

Full instructions for borrowing from ECOL are provided on a separate sheet distributed to Minnesota recipients of this catalog; additional copies of the sheet are available on request.

SCOPE OF THE COLLECTION

ECOL attempts to bring together publications from all subject fields which relate to the physical environment and man's impact upon it. The collection includes writings on such diverse subjects as resource management, environmental policy, law, pollution, conservation, population, forestry, wildlife, energy, and environmental education. These publications come not only from trade publishers but also from professional associations, industries, citizen organizations, and agencies of federal, regional, state and local governments.

Because it cuts across the traditional subject divisions of library collections and of academic disciplines, ECOL presents a coherent body of information that might otherwise be diffused in a general collection. The collection contains works ranging in sophistication from introductory books for children to highly technical reports on minute aspects of single subjects.

Although the books and documents here cataloged have been selected with particular attention to the concerns of Minnesota and contiguous areas, the collection is sufficiently general to serve as a guide and model for any other library. Only in part can ECOL be said to have a regional emphasis, for only in part are environmental problems amenable to regional solutions. The regionalism of ECOL —and its wider range of application—is manifest in two fundamental aspects. First, because it has a definite geographic focus, ECOL seeks to cover intensively all environmental and ecological situations that occur within its domain.

Secondly, ECOL's regionalism is reflected in its exhaustive coverage of the publications of governmental and private agencies located within its region. Here again, the work is regional only in part. Broader use may be made of ECOL by adapting this list to the requirements of libraries in other regions, with librarians substituting their own regional materials for the Minnesota materials represented here.

It should be noted that the author-subject-title catalog records only catalogued books and documents. Other aspects of the total collection, particularly the periodicals, the pamphlet collection, the environmental impact statement depository, and the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission public document collection will be useful to environmental researchers.

Appended to this catalog is a subject heading list which gives an indication of the scope of the pamphlet collection. This list, compiled from many sources and revised continually, will serve as a tool for research in ECOL as well as a model for replication or adaptation by other libraries. Also appended is a list of periodicals currently received, including subscription information.

ECOL serves as a depository for environmental impact statements required by the Minnesota Environmental Policy Act, and also obtains federal environmental impact statements for regional projects and major national actions of interest locally. Since this collection is separately indexed, the holdings are not reflected in this catalog, and inquiry should be made directly to ECOL.

The regular papers of appropriate Minnesota state agencies are collected, and these also are separately maintained and not reflected in this catalog. ECOL serves as the public document room for the documents relating to licensing and monitoring of nuclear power plants in Minnesota. This collection of uncataloged materials must be used in the library.

COMPUTER PREPARATION

The catalog has been prepared by computer. It conforms as nearly as possible to Library of Congress cataloging, classification and subject headings. Because the collection is relatively small, numerous cross-references have been provided. Filing is basically that of the American Library Association's rules for filing catalog cards, but modified in this case for computer processing. Proofreading was performed as part of the computer operation.

ORGANIZATION

The ECOL Book Catalog Supplement is sub-divided into three catalogs:

AUTHOR AND MAIN ENTRY CATALOG (white pages)
—all books in the collection are listed by author or other main entry

SUBJECT CATALOG (green pages)
—books are listed under all appropriate subjects

TITLE CATALOG (yellow pages)
—most books in the collection are listed by title

The first edition of the ECOL Book Catalog was subdivided in the same manner, but the colored paper was not used.

In the AUTHOR AND MAIN ENTRY CATALOG, the author may be an individual, a firm, a government agency, an institution, a conference, or some other organization. In cases where neither an individual or a corporate author is identified, the main entry is under the title. If an author may be identified in more than one way, suitable cross-references are supplied to lead the inquirer to the correct entry.

The SUBJECT CATALOG will lead the reader to works which deal entirely or in part with a given topic. Subjects are arranged alphabetically. Subdivisions of a subject which follow dashes precede all other extensions of the subject, such as inverted and phrase headings. Many cross-references are provided in this part of the catalog.

The TITLE CATALOG will aid the reader who knows the title of a book sought for. Initial articles such as "a," "an," or "the," are ignored in alphabetizing, as are their equivalents in foreign languages. Occasionally, titles which are not distinctive or which are identical to subject headings are omitted from the TITLE CATALOG.

The CALL NUMBER is printed in bold type at the end of each entry and it appears as a single line (e.g., QH541.13.W34). It is the device which brings together books on a subject for shelving in the library, and is an important piece of information to provide when requesting books.

REF before a call number means that the book is for use only in the ECOL library and cannot be sent out or borrowed.

f before a call number means that the book is larger than normal and may be shelved in a separate section.

Fiction without a call number means that the work is a novel, not a factual treatment of the subject.

ECOL at the end of each call number distinguishes ECOL books from the rest of the Minneapolis Public Library and Information Center collection.
